

Steve's Haunted Yard

<http://www.freewebs.com/steveshauntedyard/flyingcrankghost.htm>

FLYING CRANK GHOST

This version is built using a rotisserie motor. I got the info off of Monster list. I got the rotisserie at Lowes on sale for $20. With a few modifications I have a great FCG that I cant wait to use Halloween 08. I will place it in our front window.

Parts List

- Rotisserie
- masking tape
- black paint
- cardboard
- lock tight glue
- Large washer
- Wood
- light skull
- Screws
- cheese cloth
- fishing line
- hangers
- eye hooks

Tools

Hole cutter
Vice
Drill and drill bits
Saw

Obtained from Omarshauntedtrail.com

Step 1

Open up the rotisserie so you can get ready to secure the shaft to be fixed to the motor.

The shaft just slides into the motor and goes in and out freely. I drilled a hole through the male and female part and placed a cotter pin to secure the shaft.

I placed some Locktight on it just to make it a stronger bond. Put it all back together and step one is done.

Next

Bend shaft 90 degrees at motor and at other end. The rotisserie shaft is also too long so you will need to cut it off to your desired length. That will be determined by the size of your

Obtained from
Omarshauntedtrail.com

Drill holes for fishing line 1,2,3

Install bolt and nuts so washer spins freely.
Add Locktight so nuts do not tighten.

Attach assembly to shaft. This on only a dry fit you will need to remove to put through wooden frame later.

Obtained from Omarshauntedtrail.com
Build the frame T

Measure for your shaft and placement of motor

Place your eye loops. one in center and on each end. This is for the fishing line to be placed through. I also placed loops on top to easily attach to ceiling

Completed assembly

Obtained from
Omarshauntedtrail.com
With paint to hide at night!

Build ghost frame with heavy wire hangers.

Shoulders and elbows need to move so create loops and link them together. I added a support between shoulders to give it strength.

You can adjust as you go. I made the hands out of cardboard and masking tape so they would be light. Add cheese cloth soaked in detergent or Rite die so the black light will make it glow and you will have one awesome FCG

Obtained from Omarshauntedtrail.com